From 19 the Wasatch County Commission recognized the need for psychiatric social help for some people in Wasatch County. At that time they invested $1500.00 in the Timpanogos Mental Health Unit in Provo to have 2 social workers come from Provo 2 afternoons each month.

Terry Jenkins was the first one to come. Various others came .

By 1983 the need was greater and the County Commission contracted with the Timpanogos Mental Health Unit to send a lady by the name of Martha Hauser to the Social Service office for 2 full days each week. She would also go 2 days to Summit County and one day at the Provo Unit.

This psychiatric social work has been helpful but still not adequate.
